

Films of Vision and Hope

Free Film Series - Energy and Transportation

Concerned about the environment and climate change? Looking for ways to make a positive, sustainable change for people and the planet? Don't miss our third Films of Vision and Hope film series, focusing on hopeful and positive solutions to environmental problems affecting our world.

Provocative films, great discussion, and opportunities to connect with others who want to make a difference.

September 17 - Energy Crossroads This award winning film exposes the problems associated with our energy consumption and offers concrete solutions. The film features passionate individuals, entrepreneurs, experts and scientists at the forefront of a new energy future.

September 24 - Kilowatt Ours Another award winner that explores energy sources and problems, then highlights people making a difference in energy conservation, efficiency and renewable, green power, all while saving money and the environment. This often amusing and always inspiring story shows, "You can easily make a difference and here's how!"

October 1 Fossil Fuel Free Film, and More Meet filmmaker Matt Harnack, and follow his adventures as he tries to live life without fossil fuels. "I was determined to break my addiction to oil. I did the only thing I knew how to do. I made a movie."

October 8 Bicycle Night Enjoy some great short films about how cities from Bogota to Havana to Copenhagen are working to make their communities bike friendly. Residents are lowering carbon footprints, getting healthier, and enjoying life much more.

October 15 In Transition An inspirational film about how local communities, like ours, can respond to peak oil and global warming while building community and enjoying life. Do come again, even if you saw the film last time - we'll have more great discussion.

October 22 Join us for our second 100 mile potluck. Connect with others and learn about opportunities to get involved.
